3. Some Context For This Article

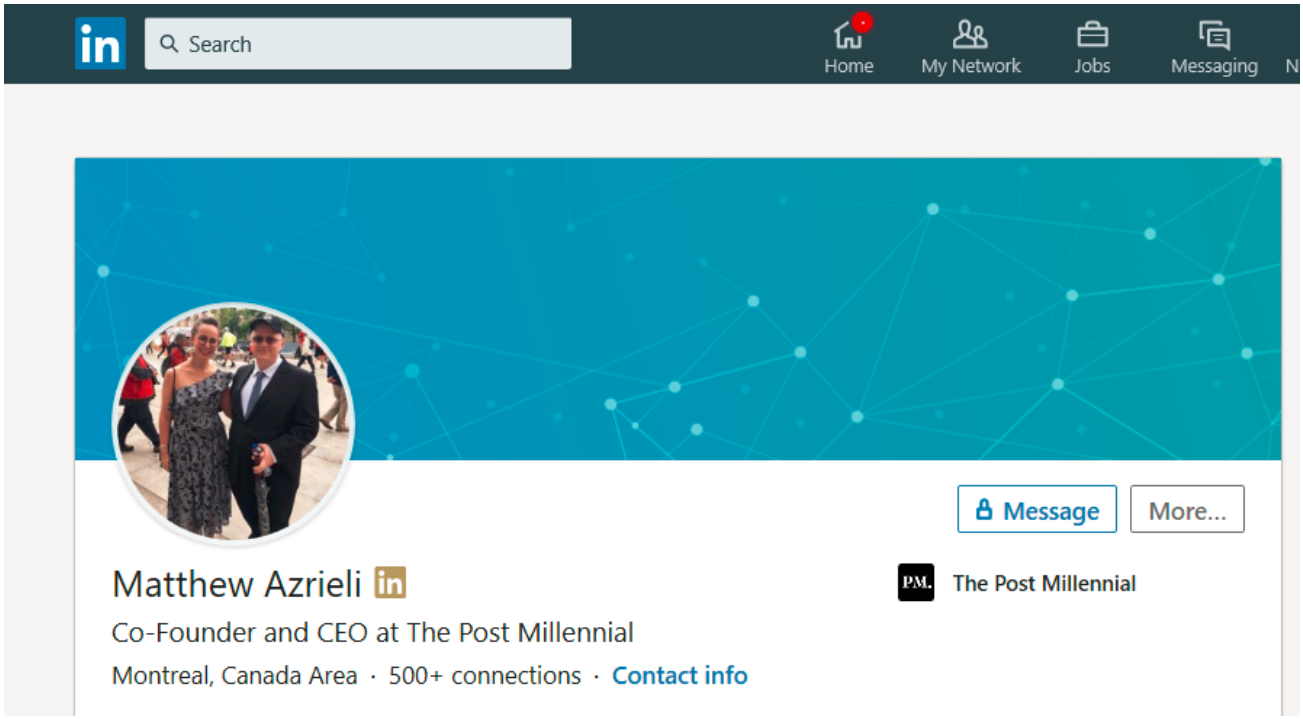
Canadians, and people in general, need to know what is going on in the world around them.

With all of the shoddy and corrupt journalism that goes on, it is important to know if a media outlet is pushing a particular agenda. It's also necessary to see what allegiances the outlet has, and is it what it claims to be? Post Media Corp controls most of the media in Canada, and has a virtual stranglehold on "conservative" media. This applies not only to MSM content, but to the alternative media as well. Many "conservative" talking heads have ties to Koch/Atlas and other globalist groups.

The last piece covered TRUE NORTH CANADA, consisting of a renamed/repurposed charity and a non-profit that Candice Malcolm "founded". Very deceptive to the readers, especially given that TNC sold itself as independent journalism and research, focusing on immigration.

Now we get to THE POST MILLENNIAL. Who is behind it, and what exactly are they pushing? The public might be interested in knowing some answers.

4. Matthew Azrieli Is David Azrieli's Grandson



Matthew Azrieli Co-Founder and Chief Executive Officer of The Post Millennial, according to his LinkedIn page. However, according to his profile, he holds another job at the same time. He is the Chief Operations Officer of VIVA!DIVA! CAN INC.

Visionary builder, businessman, and philanthropist

It is with deep sadness that we announce that David J. Azrieli, C.M., C.Q., M.Arch., visionary builder, developer and businessman, community leader, philanthropist and devoted Zionist, died peacefully today surrounded by his family in his country house in Ivry-sur-le-Lac, Quebec. He was 92.

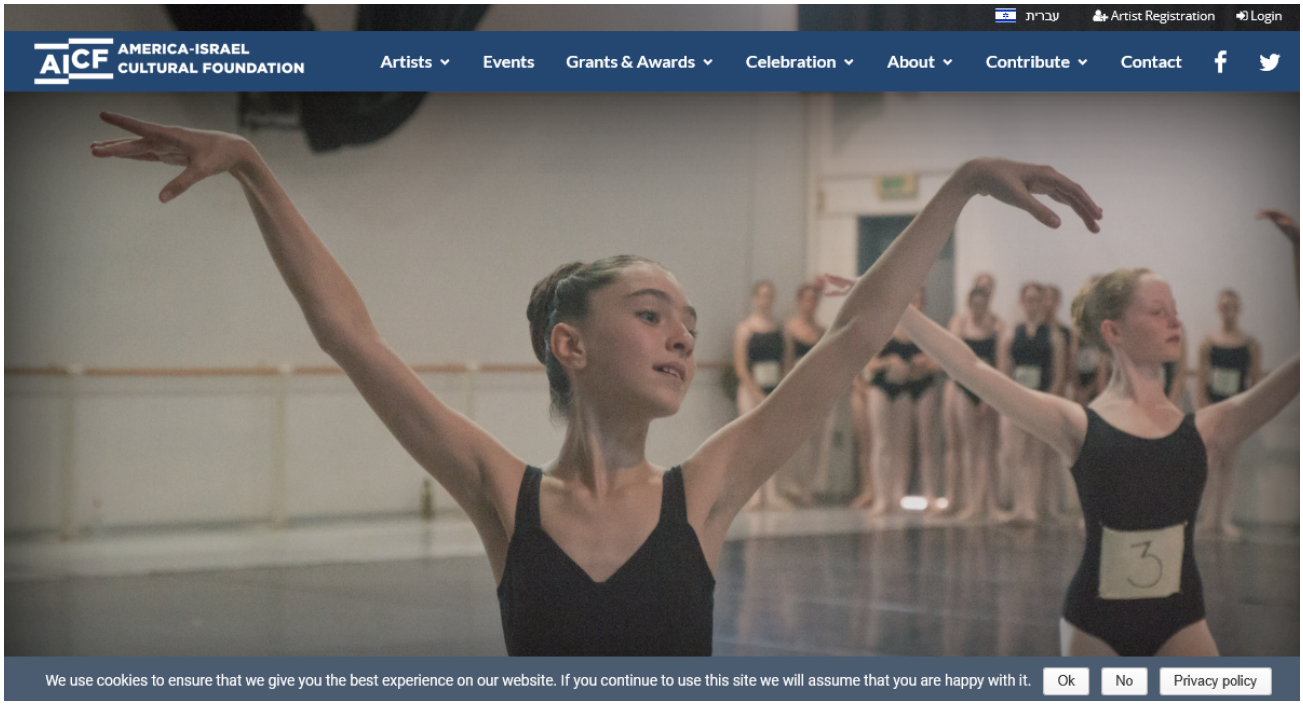
So the head of the "alternative media" Post Millennial outfit is Matthew Azrieli, the grandson David Azrieli, the billionaire and Israeli media tycoon. Good to see some real opposition to the status quo here in Canada.

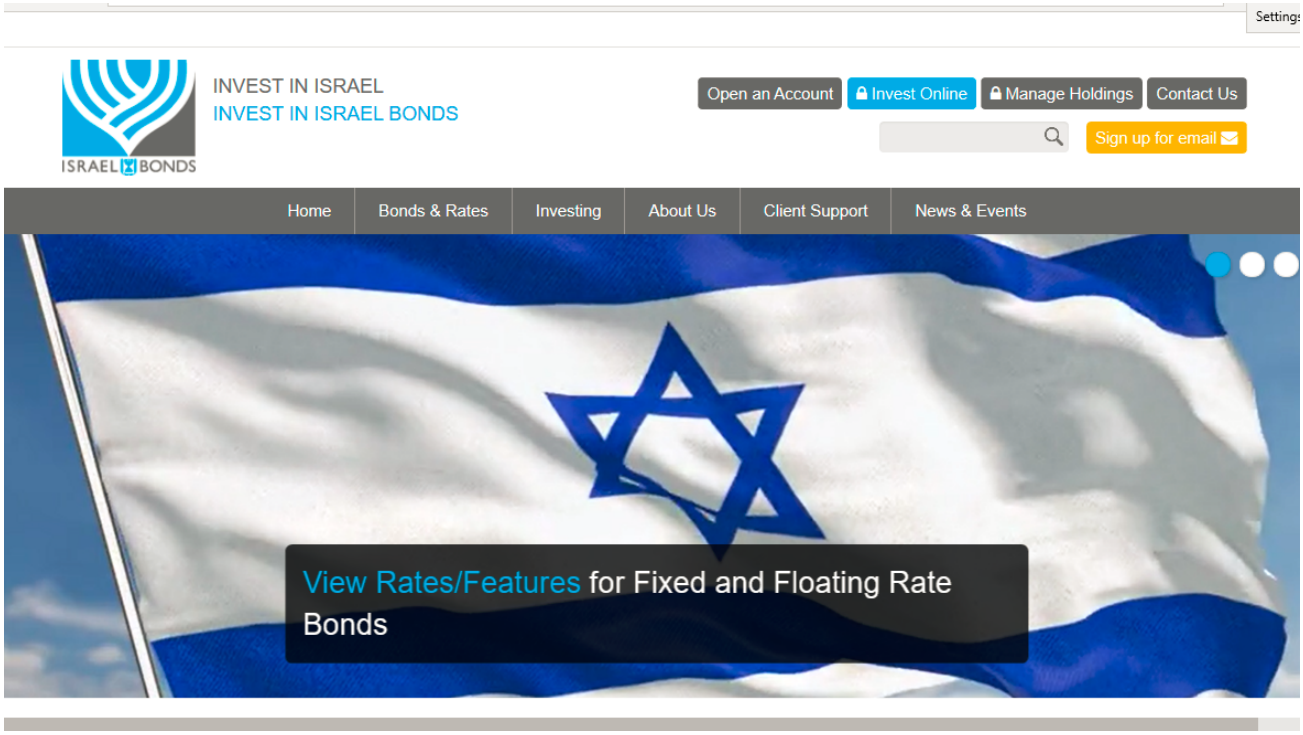
Now, let's take a look at the 2 foundations which Matthew Azrieli is a board member of.

5. America-Israel Cultural Foundation



One group that Azrieli is a board member of, but doesn't list on his Post Millennial biography, is the America-Isreal Cultural Foundation. One would think that a CEO of a "Canadian" media outlet would be interested in Canadian culture, but it seems not.

6. Israel Bonds



Take a look at the National Directors. While Azrieli is supposedly the CEO of a media organization for Canadian news, he is also a board member of an organization promoting sales of bonds to boost Israel. Funny, he doesn't mention that conflict of interest either.

Creator of popular conservative Ontario Proud page joins Erin O'Toole campaign team

Jeff Ballingall has made a name for himself over the past few years in pioneering the use of Facebook to spread conservative messaging

On the “ABOUT” page, Ballingall is listed as being the Chief Marketing Officer, and specializes in user growth, advertising, and digital media distribution. This sounds harmless enough, but Jeff omits very relevant parts of his past on his TPM biography.

> Jeff Ballingall has made a name for himself over the past few years in pioneering the use of Facebook to spread conservative messaging

> Ballingall was also part of the public effort to oust Andrew Scheer as leader after the 2019 election, creating a group called “Conservative Victory” with fellow Conservatives Kory Teneycke and John Reynolds. “When a political leader fails, they resign,” the group’s website said.

> In a 2019 Toronto Life interview, Ballingall said he was working at crisis communications firm Navigator when he came up with the plan for Ontario Proud, largely to fight back against the anti-conservative ad campaigns often run by labour unions. He figured nobody was effectively using Facebook to organize a third-party campaign. “The ecosystem was changing,” he told the magazine.

> In the past two days, O'Toole has featured prominently on sites run by Ballingall. On Wednesday, both the Ontario Proud and Canada Proud pages posted a 15-second video created by O'Toole to thank Canadian energy workers for keeping homes heated during a cold snap.

> The next day, both Canada Proud and Ontario Proud posted flattering quotes about O'Toole from a Toronto Sun article discussing all of the candidates. They then shared a Post Millennial article on leadership candidate Peter MacKay being attacked by Conservative MP Scott Reid, and then another Post Millennial article praising O'Toole's "toughness" on criminal justice policy. Finally they posted a joint video profile of O'Toole and fellow MP Pierre Poilievre, and promised further profiles would be coming on other candidates.

Ballingall was working at the "crisis communications" firm called Navigator, when he came up with the idea of Ontario Proud. In essence, it would be for pushback against ideas than ran contrary to the Conservative Inc. doctrine that his people wanted to push. He is also involved in a Federal counterpart.

Nothing nefarious about having political beliefs. However, the fact that Ballingall is a "crisis communicator" by profession, and a conservative partisan, greatly reduces the chances that he is involved in unbiased journalism.

The grandson of an Israeli media tycoon and billionaire (Azrieli), and a professional mouthpiece (Ballingall), team up to run independent media. But let's see what the story is on some of the other players.

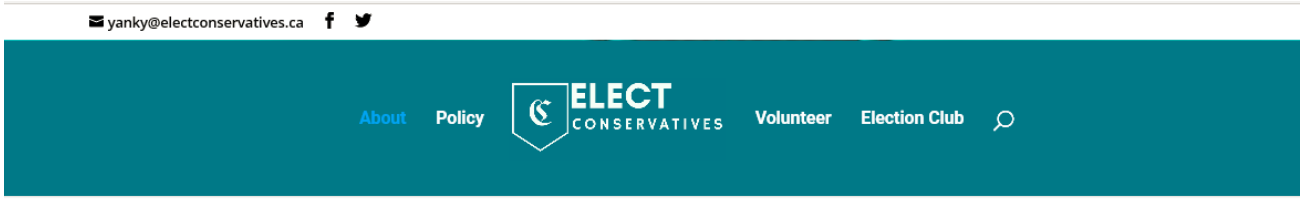
There are other donors, but this should prove the point. Ontario Proud, Jeff Ballingall's organization, was heavily involved in the 2018 election, trying to get Doug Ford elected. See this piece from Canadaland.

Why should Ballingall be taken seriously in any journalistic sense? He is little more than a political fundraiser and mouthpiece.

9. Yaakov Pollak: "Elect Conservatives" Strategist



About

Conservatism at its core is about a deep understanding of tradition, economics, and ultimately realistic choices. We believe that way forward is through personal responsibility and ultimately a society which those of us who work hard can succeed.

We believe that Canada also has a culture that is deeply worth protecting. We accept per capita more immigrants than any other country and have done so with far fewer problems.

That has occurred for generations due to Canadian culture.

We lastly believe that a nation is meant to become strong. The Canadian

I bet this group doesn't feel the same way towards Israel. Letting in tons of immigrants (more per capita than any other nation), doesn't do anything to protect your culture. He comes across as another Ben Shapiro, speaking out both sides of his mouth.

More diversity and migrants for thee.
Less diversity and migrants for me.
But I digress.

10. Barrett Wilson: Who Is That?

Barrett Wilson is apparently a pen name for one of their senior editors. There is vague information about being a social justice warrior until the crowd turned.

In fairness, work here is done anonymously. It seems strange to happen on a “more legit” site though.

Mentioned before, but worth repeating. An author for the Post Millennial is Spencer Fernando, a fellow at the lobbying firm National Citizens Coalition. Of course, this was Stephen Harper's old organization.

12. Recycled Post Media Writers

While getting a variety of voices is always a nice thing to have, it seems that many of the authors who contribute have all been writing for various Post Media outlets. Not very independent when it is a lot of the same people from the mainstream media.

13. TPM On Journalistic Integrity

> Conflict of Interests
> The Post Millennial's staff is dedicated to maintaining the newspaper's credibility and integrity and, thus, has pledged against engaging in conflicts of interests which may compromise such maintenance. All staff are expected to report to senior staff members well before engaging in such actions. Disciplinary action may follow a conflict of interest.

Certainly being dedicated to upholding standards of accuracy and truthfulness are important. However, this statement reads like it was cut and pasted from several sources. Also, given the openly political activities the group engages in, what exactly are they doing to prevent any conflict of interest from taking place?

This outfit is actually more sleazy than True North Canada, and that is saying a lot.

Forgot to mention Andy ngo and angelo isidorou… MI6 agent who helped create antifa. His bio reeks of spook, his british accent was really heavy in 2017, and he's born in Portland? Did the "media" tour with the usual suspects. MI6 has been pumping out clowns like douglas murray, andy ngo and more "conservatives" since 2016.

Angelo is also a spook and a creation, I doubt it's even his real name just like andy ngo. He appeared on the map by creating UCB free speech club, which we have learned from a few days ago, UBC is heavily controlled by the establishment. He brings a whole bunch of controlled opposition speakers. Peterson is one world government/UN/soros puppet, appeared 5 times. Shapiro is a zionist controlled opp, Hicks is at the Ayn rand institute, which is one of many "think tanks" funded/operated by the establishment. Yasmine mohammed was on the rubin report and did a tour of controlled opposition "media", she speaks somewhat the truth, but she's very clearly a paid shill spewing hate. Weinstein is obviously a paid shill, his brother is close to satanic blood drinker thiel. Isidorou co founds people's party with establishment puppet bernier and other known swamps. Bunch of clowns mentioned above also went on cia rogan "podcast".

Angelo isidorou role is propaganda, reality deflection but also infiltration… He likely has family ties to European establishment, given his recruitment from high school. He tried infiltrating the NPA, and that photo setup he took to give him credibility as a "trump supporter" came back to bite him. He resigned from the NPA due to that picture. Do you think the NPA is legit or a bunch of clowns as well?

Please let me know what you think of the NPA, I researched and they seemed legit. You're on the money, you're input would be very valuable. They have John Coupar representing them for Vancouver mayor… His twitter feed isn't too bad, but he's a vaccine clown pusher. Is he appeasing the mob to get in or he's also a puppet? Some board members are solid, but that's about it.
